MANDATORY REPORTING POLICY

CHANGE HISTORY

Version	Issued	Key Changes	Review
2.0	2019	Alignment with current practices and Department of Education regulations	2020

RATIONALE

Teachers have a legal and moral responsibility to respond to serious incidences involving abuse and neglect of the children with whom they have contact, and to report and disclose instances that they believe involve physical or mental injury, sexual abuse or neglect. All children have a right to feel safe and to be safe.

A broad range of professional groups are identified in the Children Youth and Families Act 2005 ('the Act') as mandatory reporters. Section 182 of the Act identifies teachers (including CRTs and those training to become teachers), school staff (including YOSH), Principals and Assistant Principals as mandatory reporters. Other professionals identified are registered medical practitioners (including psychiatrists), nurses (including school nurses), and police officers.

Section 183 of the Act states that any person (even if not a mandated reporter), who believes on reasonable grounds that a child is in need of protection, may report their concerns to Child Protection. This means that any person, including non-mandated school staff, can make a report to Child Protection when they believe that a child or young person is at risk of harm and in need of protection, and the child's parents are unable or unwilling to protect the child.

DEFINITIONS

Child abuse means all forms of physical, emotional and sexual abuse and exploitation, neglect or negligent treatment, medical neglect, commercial (e.g. for financial gain) or other exploitation of a child and include any actions that results in actual or potential harm to a child. See Child Safe Policy for additional terms and definitions.

POLICY STATEMENT

Mandated staff members must make a report to Child Protection as soon as practicable after forming a belief on reasonable grounds that a child or young person is in need of protection from significant harm as a result of physical injury or sexual abuse, and the child's parents are unable or unwilling to protect the child.

Forming a belief on reasonable grounds

A person may form a belief on reasonable grounds that a child is in need of protection after becoming aware that a child or young person's health, safety or wellbeing is at risk and the child's parents are unwilling or unable to protect the child.

There may be reasonable grounds for forming such a belief if:

1. A child or young person states that they have been physically or sexually abused
2. A child or young person states that they know someone who has been physically or sexually abused (sometimes the child may be talking about themselves)
3. Someone who knows the child or young person states that the child or young person has been physically or sexually abused
4. A child shows signs of being physically or sexually abused
5. The staff member is aware of persistent family violence or parental substance misuse, psychiatric illness or intellectual disability that is impacting on the child or young person's safety, stability or development
6. The staff member observes signs or indicators of abuse, including non-accidental or unexplained injury, persistent neglect, poor care or lack of appropriate supervision
7. A child's actions or behaviour may place them at risk of significant harm and the child's parents are unwilling or unable to protect the child.

Reporting a belief

Staff members, whether or not mandated, need to report their belief when the belief is formed in the course of undertaking their professional duties. A report must be made as soon as practicable after forming the belief and on each occasion on which they become aware of any further reasonable grounds for the belief.

If one staff member has a different view from another staff member about making a report and the staff member continues to hold the belief that a child is in need of protection, that person is obliged to make a report to Child Protection.

Protecting the identity of the reporter

Confidentiality is provided for reporters under the Act, by preventing disclosure of the name or any information likely to lead to the identification of a person who has made a report in accordance with legislation, except in specific circumstances.

If a report is made in good faith, it does not constitute unprofessional conduct or a breach of professional ethics on the part of the reporter and therefore the reporter cannot be held legally liable in respect of the report. This means that a person who makes a report in accordance with the legislation will not be held liable for the eventual outcome of any investigation of the report.

The identity of a reporter must remain confidential unless:

1. The reporter chooses to inform the child, young person or family of the report
2. The reporter consents in writing to their identity being disclosed

3. A court or tribunal decides that it is necessary for the identity of the reporter to be disclosed to ensure the safety and wellbeing of the child
4. A court or tribunal decides that, in the interests of justice, the reporter is required to attend court to provide evidence.

Information provided during a protective investigation may be used in a court report if the risks to the child or young person require the case to proceed to court. In these circumstances, the source of the information may be required to provide evidence to the court.

If Child Protection decides that the report is about a significant concern for the wellbeing of a child, they may refer the report to a community-based child and family service and disclose the identity of the reporter to that service. However, the Act provides that neither Child Protection nor the community-based child and family service may disclose the reporter's identity to any other person without the reporter's consent.

Failure to report and disclose

A failure by mandated professionals and staff members to report, or disclose, a reasonable belief that a child is in need of protection from significant harm as a result of physical or sexual abuse may result in the person being prosecuted and a court imposing a fine under the Act.

Making a report

The Act allows for two types of reports to be made in relation to significant concerns for the safety or wellbeing of a child – a report to Child Protection or a referral to Child FIRST.

A report to Child Protection should be considered if, after taking into account all of the available information, the staff member forms a view that the child or young person is in need of protection because:

1. The harm or risk of harm has a serious impact on the child's immediate safety, stability or development
2. The harm or risk of harm is persistent and entrenched and is likely to have a serious impact on the child's safety, stability or development
3. The child's parents cannot or will not protect the child or young person from harm.

Where during the course of carrying out their normal duties, a school staff member forms the belief on reasonable grounds that a child is in need of protection, the staff member must make a report to Child Protection regarding this belief and the reasonable grounds as soon as practicable.

Staff members may form a professional judgement or belief, in the course of undertaking their professional duties based on:

1. Warning signs or indicators of harm that have been observed or inferred from information about the child
2. Legal requirements, such as mandatory reporting
3. Knowledge of child and adolescent development
4. Consultation with colleagues and other professionals
5. Professional obligations and duty-of-care responsibilities

6. Established protocols
7. Internal policies and procedures in an individual licensed children's service or school.

Upon receipt of a report, Child Protection may seek further information, usually from professionals who may also be involved with the child or family, to determine whether further action is required.

In most circumstances, Child Protection will inform the reporter of the outcome of the report. When the report is classified by Child Protection as a Wellbeing Report, Child Protection will, in turn, make a referral to Child FIRST.

Any person who is registered as a teacher under the Education and Training Reform Act 2006, or any person who has been granted permission to teach under that Act, including principals, is mandated to make a report to Child Protection. In the course of undertaking their professional duties, mandated staff members are required to report their belief, when the belief is formed on reasonable grounds, that a child is in need of protection from significant harm as a result of sexual abuse or physical injury.

School policy and procedures stipulate how staff fulfill their duty of care towards children and young people in their school. Teachers are encouraged to discuss any concerns about the safety and wellbeing of students with the principal or a member of the school leadership team. If a principal or member of the leadership team does not wish to make a mandatory report, this does not discharge the staff's obligation to do so if they have formed a reasonable belief that abuse may have occurred. If the teacher's concerns continue, even after consultation with the principal or member of the leadership team, that teacher is still legally obliged to make a mandatory report of their concerns.

Information about the identity of a person making a report to Child Protection must be kept confidential unless the reporter consents to the disclosure of their identity. If the staff member wishes to remain anonymous, this information should be conveyed at the time that the reporter makes the mandatory report.

IMPLEMENTATION

The role of school staff

School staff have a duty of care to protect and preserve the safety, health and wellbeing of children and young people in their care and staff must always act in the best interests of those children and young people. If a staff member has any concerns regarding the health, safety or wellbeing of a child or young person it is important to take immediate action.

Note: The role of investigating an allegation of child abuse rests solely with Child Protection and/or Victoria Police.

The roles and responsibilities of staff in supporting children and young people who are involved with Child Protection may include acting as a support person for students, attending Child Protection case plan meetings, observing and monitoring students' behaviour, and liaising with professionals.

There may be times when two or more mandated staff members, for example a teacher and a principal, have formed a belief about the same child or young person on the same occasion. In this situation it is sufficient for only one of the mandated staff members to make a report. The other staff member is obliged to ensure that the report has been made and that all of the grounds for their own belief were included in the report made by the other staff member.

Confidentiality

Staff must respect confidentiality when dealing with a case of suspected child abuse and neglect and may discuss case details and the identity of the child or the young person and their family only with those involved in managing the situation.

When a child or young person has moved to another school, professional judgment should be exercised as to what information needs to be passed on. This will be guided by usual procedures for passing on information about a child's general wellbeing or special needs, and the role of the school in any ongoing care plans.

Interviews at Victorian schools

Child Protection may conduct interviews of children and young people at school without parental knowledge or consent. However, a child will be interviewed at a Victorian school only in exceptional circumstances and if it is in the child's best interests to proceed in this manner. Child Protection will notify the school of any intention to interview a child or young person. This may occur regardless of whether the school is the source of the report to Child Protection.

When Child Protection practitioners arrive at the school, the principal or their nominee should ask to see their identification before allowing Child Protection to have access to the child or young person.

Support persons

Children and young people should be advised of their right to have a supportive adult present during interviews. If a child is too young to understand the significance of the interview, a staff member should make arrangements for a supportive adult to attend with the child.

A staff member may be identified as a support person for the child or young person during the interview. Prior to the commencement of the interview, the Child Protection practitioner should always authorise the staff member to receive information regarding Child Protection's investigation.

This may occur verbally or in writing using the relevant Child Protection proforma.

Independent persons must refrain from providing their opinions or accounts of events during interviews. A principal or their delegate may act as an independent person when the child or young person is to be interviewed, unless they believe that doing so will create a conflict of interest.

Advising parents, carers or guardians

Staff do not require the permission of parents, carers or guardians to make a report to Child Protection, nor are they required to tell parents, carers or guardians that they have done so.

It is the responsibility of Child Protection to advise the parents, carers or guardians of the interview at the earliest possible opportunity. This should occur either before, or by the time the child arrives home.

Ensuring that a Child Protection interview takes place

The school does not have the power to prevent parents, carers or guardians from removing their children from the school and should not attempt to prevent the parents, carers or guardians from collecting the child. If a parent/carer or guardian removes a child before a planned interview has taken place, the principal and/or their nominee should contact Child Protection or Victoria Police immediately.

Staff Training

Staff will be informed of Mandatory Reporting requirements as part of their initial induction to the school and will be provided with supporting documentation in their staff handbook.

Updates will take place annually as part of the Performance and Development/Staff meeting rotation.

Yarra Primary School staff:

- Are mandated to report physical and/or sexual abuse
- Have a duty of care to identify and take action as appropriate concerning emotional abuse or neglect.

Warning signs and concerns

If you have noted warning signs and have concerns, you need to:

1. Document – observation, date, sign
2. Be aware of agency/support already involved
3. Make a professional judgement
4. Seek support/advice from Principal/Assistant Principal
5. Maybe talk with child and/or family.

Making a decision regarding action may not be based on a one-off event. Keep documenting.

Your role is NOT to investigate or collect detailed evidence to indict an offender, but to support the child.

With your information and documentation refer to the Principal or Assistant Principal and they will discuss the reasonable grounds relating to serious risk and determine what action, if any, is necessary at that time.

If a belief is formed, on reasonable grounds, the school is mandated to report their concerns to the DHS if it involves physical or sexual abuse.

The Principal/assistant Principal will be the contact with DHS Child Protection Services if a report is to be made.

Disclosures

Any disclosure is to be documented and reported to the Principal/Assistant Principal as soon as possible.

If a student discloses:

- Stay calm and listen
- Don't ask leading questions like, "Why?", but gently ask questions like "What happened next?"
- Reassure them they haven't done anything wrong
- Let them know they're believed
- Gather only essential facts
- Thank them for their trust in you
- Don't tell them you will keep it a secret or that it will all be okay now
- Tell them what will happen next
- Make notes objectively as possible, and date and sign.

Remember, it is not your role to investigate or collect detailed evidence to indict an offender, but to support the child.

The person informing the Principal/Assistant Principal should ensure the report was made.

If contact is made with Child Protection (at DHHS)

Certain information will be required by the CPS intake worker. In some cases, the report will be taken further and the school and possibly police will be involved.

The school will have a support/monitoring role for the student in these cases. Sometimes support for the family is also necessary.

The Principal/Assistant Principal will support the notifier and vice versa.
